

The Staring Game

Mozambican folktale
English

A long time ago, the rabbit and the snake were good friends.

One day they began to chat with each other. But the rabbit was much cleverer than the snake, and the snake knew it!

So, they were discussing who could stare the longest. The snake said:
Let's try it. I will win by staring at you.
So the rabbit agreed to the staring game.

The snake and the rabbit began to stare. They kept on doing it for several minutes.

Then the snake got tired. So he got out of his body and only his skin was left looking at the rabbit.

The rabbit continued looking at the snake's skin for several hours.

The rabbit thought he was the cleverest animal, but on that day, his cleverness was ended. And that's why to this day the rabbit sleeps with his eyes open!

The Staring Game

Writer: Mozambican folktale

Illustration: Zito Jorge Ngovene

Language: English

© Mozambican Writers

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution
(CC-BY) Version 3.0 Unported Licence

Disclaimer: You are free to download, copy, translate or adapt this story and use the illustrations as long as you attribute or credit the original author/s and illustrator/s.

This story was written down in 2013
by students at Universidade Pedagógica-Maxixe, Mozambique, from their memory of what was told at home, and edited by their English teacher, Ingrid Schechter.

Saide
South African Institute for Distance Education

www.africanstorybook.org
A Saide Initiative